COMMENCEMENT WEEK OPENED BY BISHOP L. W. BURTON

"Reconciling Liberty and Law," Was Subject of Masterful Address By the Rt. Rev. Lewis W. Burton Before Graduating Class.

Commencement week was opened Sunday evening at 8 o'clock at the High School auditorium with the annual class sermon which was delivered by the Rt. Rev. Lewis W. Burton, Bishop of the diocese of Lexington, Protestant Episcopal church.

The auditorium was filled and listened to one of the most masterful and timely sermons delivered here in some time. Bishop Burton took for his text Gal. 5:13-14: "For brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another. For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Bishop Burton plainly established, through an interesting and logical argument, that while one obtains liberty in the various worlds, the gaining of that liberty entails new duties under unchangeable laws. He left with the graduates a watchword: "Love—Serve."

The musical part of the program was especially beautiful. A choir composed of Mrs. Alfred Peed, Mrs. Wallace Rees, Miss Millie Caden, Mr. W. Hall Strode and Dr. P. G. Smoot, rendered several beautiful anthems. Miss Elizabeth Barbour was the pianist.

Other school events for the week follow:

Tuesday afternoon—Senior Class Day at High School.

Wednesday afternoon—Eighth Grade Graduation at High School.

Wednesday evening—Colored High School Commencement at Washington Theater.

CLUB GROUNDS WILL BE LAID OFF TODAY

Expert Will Spend the Entire Day at Edgfield Farm Laying Out the Golf and Tennis Grounds.

A very interesting meeting of the executive committee of the Edgfield Club was held Sunday at which time details as to location of golf links, tennis courts, etc., were discussed at length.

An expert landscape engineer from Portsmouth, Ohio, arrived here Monday morning and was taken directly to Edgfield farm where he will spend the day in making locations. The club house will be first located and Contractor Smart will begin work on it just as soon as possible and will have it completed within the time allowed him by the construction committee.

The expert will also lay off the golf links and locate several tennis courts. The Secretary-Treasurer of the club made his first bank deposit Saturday and interest in the proposed Country Club is growing daily. Those who are behind the movement this time seem to have a determination to let nothing stand in their way in making the thing a success and before the summer is over, it is expected that the Edgfield Club will be the scene of many brilliant social affairs.

SAPIRO MEETING TO BE HELD IN BIG TENT AT BEECHWOOD PARK

Two Thousand Tobacco Growers Expected in Maysville Thursday Afternoon To Hear Co-operative Selling Plan Discussed.

The great meeting of tobacco growers from Northeastern Kentucky and Southern Ohio which will be held in Maysville on next Thursday afternoon promises to be one of the greatest gatherings of tobacco growers this section of the tobacco district has ever seen. The announcement of the meeting is being carried into every section of the district and every grower is being urged to attend to learn at first hand the details of the proposed plan.

Judo Robert W. Bingham, of Louisville, at the head of the organization committee, who addressed the bankers here last week, will return with Mr. Aaron Sapiro, author of the proposed system and both of these gentlemen who have given much attention to the system for the past several months will speak.

Arrangements have been made to hold the meeting in a great tent 60 by one hundred feet which will seat probably two thousand people. The exact location of this tent has not as yet been fully decided upon but it will be either in Beechwood Park or the baseball park and plans will be made to care for a record breaking crowd of growers.

Every man who is at all interested in solving the tobacco marketing problem is urged to hear this proposed system explained and to offer any suggestions he might have toward bettering the system.

ANOTHER ENTERS RACE FOR CITY COUNCILMAN

Mr. Charles H. Paul Seeks to Represent Fifth Ward in City Council for the next Two Years.

Interest in the race for City Councilman seems to have opened and it is now expected that hats will fly thick and fast into this arena in which there is always much interest.

Mr. Charles H. Paul, well known local contracting plumber, today announces his candidacy for one of the seats from the Fifth ward and in making his announcement makes no pre-election promises except that if chosen by his neighbors to represent them, he will do his very best to be a true representative of their desires in every matter that shall come before council. Mr. Paul is progressive and a booster for better Maysville. He is especially qualified for a seat in council because of his extensive business experience in a line with which the city fathers have much to do. His knowledge of plumbing and its kindred work fits him with a general knowledge of construction worth much to council.

Mr. Paul has many friends in his home ward who will support him strongly in this race.

FORDNEY EXTENDS INVITATION.

Chairman Fordney, of the House Ways and Means Committee, has hung the late string outside for southern producers to pull and enter into the councils of the nation with respect to the tariff. On May 26th a petition circulated among members of the House by the Southern Tariff Association was received by the Ways and Means Committee requesting that hides and oils be placed on the dutiable list. This date was fixed for the purpose of ascertaining the status of southern products in the pending general tariff measure and in order that the members of the committee might be properly informed thereon.

Mr. Fordney announced that "the ways and means committee is now engaged in writing the permanent tariff measure and we want the cooperation of the South, as we are anxious to deal fairly with all sections. We would be glad to have southern representatives enumerate southern products they desire placed on the dutiable list and we would also like for them to say whether they want a tariff on their products for the purpose of protecting the producer or for raising money for the government. We, of course, take it for granted that every representative who asks for duty on products of his district and section is willing to grant the same relative duty upon the products of all other sections. To assume otherwise would, of course, carry with it a charge of insincerity and selfishness beneath the dignity of an American representative. While we are going to write a protective tariff measure and the Republican party wants to deal fairly and intelligently with the South, we have no desire to levy a duty on a southern product which the southern people want on the free list. We recognize a Congressman as the authorized spokesman of his district and the custodian of the welfare of his people and we shall be glad to hear them define the attitude of their constituents with regard to a tariff on southern products."

It is reported that the circulation of this petition has made it decidedly uncomfortable for certain old-time Bourbon Congressmen who have fought protection for many years, but who are coming to realize that the free trade doctrine is no longer popular in the South. If they come out for the Republican doctrine they will be open to the charge of inconsistency; if they continue to oppose it, they will hear from their districts in the next election. Mr. Fordney has put the question up to them fairly and squarely and they must either fish or cut bait.

It is doubtful if any economic organization in the past generation has exercised a more potent influence on southern Congressmen than the Southern Tariff Association, headed by John Kirby, of Texas. The association itself is the offspring of the desire of the South to get away from the false doctrine of free trade so general in that section when Cotton was King and manufacture and diversified crops were not so well established. So long as the chief dependence of the South was on the cotton crop and the Hayne doctrine that free trade in textile manufactures from England meant an enlarged market for raw cotton was accepted as uncontroversial, the South remained wedded to that god. But during the past few years enterprising business men have brought the mills to the South, which is better than sending the South to the mills, and the value of protection to industry has grown to be appreciated, this appreciation enhanced by the fact that vegetable oils have also become an important southern product, and a paying one if the competition of the Orient is restricted.

It will be amusing to study the replies made by the old South free trade Representatives in Congress to the questions put by Chairman Fordney, and they may be assured that those replies will be given ample publicity throughout the sections which they hope to continue to represent.

A BARBED ARROW.

Not for many a day has a speech got under the Democratic skin as have the remarks of Ambassador Harvey at the recent Pilgrim Dinner in London. They set forth so vigorously and clearly the motives that drew the United States into the war, and contained assertions so utterly at variance with everything preached by the former leader of the Democratic party, that the minority are fairly beside themselves with rage. Senator McKellar of Tennessee politely calls the Ambassador a liar by declaring that his statement that "we were afraid not to fight" is "as false as Satan himself."

Why should Mr. McKellar or anybody else take issue with such a statement? Is it not a fact that the United States was afraid Germany would continue her ruthless destruction of American commerce if steps were not taken to prevent her? And is not that precisely why the United States sent her soldiers overseas? America fought in self-defense, as the Ambassador pointed out at another part of his address. And one who fights in self-defense is afraid that if he does not fight he will be overwhelmed. It requires no mental circumlocution to arrive at that conclusion.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS.

Postmaster General Hays has issued an order restoring the second-class mailing privileges to the Milwaukee Leader and the New York Call, two notorious Socialist newspapers. The action must not be interpreted as expressing the sympathy of Mr. Hays for the matter appearing in those sheets. The Postmaster General takes the view that the papers should either be denied the use of the mails altogether or should have the same privileges as other periodicals. Mr. Burleson did not exclude them from the mails, but permitted them to circulate after paying the higher postal rates called for under a third class rating. Postmaster General Hays does not believe in such half-way measures. The papers are either good or bad, and should or should not be carried in the mails. Their future status will be determined by the sort of matter that they print.

I want our America to have nothing to do with any nation that it not willing to sit at the table and show its cards.—President Warren G. Harding.

UNCLE TED'S BED-TIME STORIES.

"Full Speed Ahead."
"I don't know. They may use it on a train but I know they use it on a boat." It was Jack talking to his sister about an expression used on boats when the Captain wants the boat to go as fast as possible.

"What are you kiddies talking about this time?" asked Uncle Ted as he came into the play room which he has fixed up for the children in the old barn.

"Ruth says that when they want a train to go fast they say, 'Full Speed Ahead.' I said I didn't know but I did know they use it on boats," answered Jack.

"You are right about the boats, Jack, but there is no way to use such an expression on trains. Orders are given there by pulling a cord that blows a little whistle in the engine cab. You will remember that when we were on that big lake steamer last summer I took you into the pilot house. There was a big dial with a handle and an arrow that turned to different words as the captain turned the handle. One of these places is marked 'Full Speed Ahead,' others such as 'Reverse,' 'Slow,' etc. Down in the engine room of the big ships, far below the pilot house, is a big dial with the same expressions on it. When the captain turns the handle in the pilot house it turns the arrow on the dial in the engine room and the engineer acts accordingly. When the pilot turns the handle to 'Full Speed Ahead,' the engineer orders all the steam possible and the big ship surges ahead in the water at its greatest speed."

Have you tried the new 10c package?

Dealers now carry both; 10 for 10c, 20 for 20c.

water at its greatest speed."

"I remember that," said Ruth.

"But kiddies," continued Uncle Ted, "There is another pilot who has his hand on the lever that is directing the affairs of our great country. His name is Warren G. Harding. He knows that there is such a thing as 'Full Speed Ahead' and he is using it. His engineers have the machinery of government well oiled, and plenty of steam in the boilers, and so it has been a well handled ship of State since Pilot Harding took over the ship. I have told you before something about the difference in men. You know one man can get you to do the thing he wants by getting you all enthused about it and worked up to the point so that you just simply go to it because you think it is not only right but because you know it is the best thing to do. Another man may come along who wants you to do the same thing but instead of filling you with enthusiasm to do it, he tells you that you MUST do it. That type of man we know as a dictator and a our form of government we have no use for such a man."

"President Harding has shown all the men with whom he has come in contact that he is NOT a dictator but a sincere, capable man who realizes that his job as pilot of the Ship of State is a real man's job and expects every other man who is working on the ship to work with him for the good of the entire bunch. And let me tell you Pilot Harding knew that his ship must go 'Full Speed Ahead,' when he was picked for the job. He didn't take just anybody for members of his crew. He took his time and picked a crew that falls right in line with the idea of doing things TODAY and not tomorrow. That is why he is able to get quick action when he gives the signal 'Full Speed Ahead.'

"It's just as I have told you before, Jack, you can't get team work if the members of the team aren't the kind of men who realize the bigness of their jobs. Neither can you get full speed. But if they are men who are on the job every minute and are working with their captain, then they can't help but win. It is the same way with our government today. Pilot Harding picked men like himself who want speed and team work and he is getting results. These couldn't be more of a speed king than the Postmaster General Will Hays who has been called a 'human dynamo.' Secretary Denby, a former officer of the United States Marine Corps, naturally knows the value of team work and speed. He is a real sailor and a commander and is making things hum in the navy. Secretary Hughes is unlike many lawyers. He won't stand for delay, and, therefore, although most of us may not realize it, our great foreign problems are being put through with amazing speed and with the results that should have been accomplished long ago. Then there is Secretary of War Weeks, he is a man of iron grain in business who goes right after the problems of the War Department and sees ahead those things that must be accomplished.

"But it is not only the heads of the various government departments who realize the work to be done. For the first time in the history of the country the principal assistants to the members of the cabinet, the men who are known as Assistant Secretaries of the departments have been getting together to discuss problems of government. This group has already been named the 'baby cabinet.' The idea was worked out by Col. Edward Clifford, the new Assistant Secretary of the Treasury who is in charge of the soldier welfare work. I think Col. Clifford felt that much good could be accomplished by these assistant secretaries meeting once in a while, and certainly they should be able to go into the problems which confront them to much better advantage.

"I haven't much more time now but later on, maybe next week, I will tell you more about this."

“Something to Think About”

Both of their hearts fed only on memories. Both of their lives seemed ruined. Behind them folly. Before them wealth without love. One day the Great Thing came—something even bigger than love—Something you'll think about, too. A romance that scales the heights and plumbs the depths of human experience set in a riot of color and beauty. A throbbing with the mightiest heart appeal ever attained in a picture.

New York Letter

by
Lucy Jeanne Price

New York.—Brooklyn bridge serves much more than an utilitarian purpose. No other place in all Greater New York is so thickly spread with artists and their palettes as is this great crossway between Manhattan and Brooklyn. “Some days they’re so thick here, they almost hold up traffic,” said a bridge policeman the other day. “About all the young artists who come for other parts of the country go to Brooklyn Bridge the first thing. They say it’s the skyline they’re so keen about getting.”

Big business methods permeate all ages. The boys who live near the Polo Grounds have always picked up a little loose change on Saturdays and holidays by standing in line for ball fans waiting to get tickets. Generally it meant 15 to 20 cents. But downtown ideas have gripped the more ambitious. Nowadays several of them are hiring smaller boys to do the actual waiting while they solicit business up and down the life of those waiting to get in. The boys who do the waiting in line get a fixed wage, while the promoters get the actual payments.

How seriously New York is taking the blue law agitation is evidenced by the re-publishing of the whole lot of them gathered up from former times. One of the larger department stores in town is advertising it at considerable length as “particularly timely.” “We want to know,” reads the ad, with what seems to be dread significance, “What the blue laws were, the reason for enacting them, and the final results of that experiment.”

Exploring for folk-songs is the mission of Florence Hudson Botsford who will sail from New York shortly for Italy. Miss Botsford, working with the International Institute of the Y. W. C. A., has compiled what will be the most complete and authentic collection of folk-songs ever published, and her trip to Italy is for the purpose of verifying in the little mountain villages of that country, a group of their songs which she has already gathered together. Slavic and Italian songs, African, Chinese, Japanese, and East Indian songs are in the collection, as well as those of western Europe, not just one of two of each nation, but while groups of them, who go farther, perhaps, in bringing down and interpreting the spirit of their people than any other medium at our command. The book will be a work of poetic art, as well as of musical and historical value. Literal translations have been made of the words by scholars in their languages; and then they have been written back into verse by such poets as Edgar Lee Masters and Edna St. Vincent Millay. More than folk-lore and folk-art interest is back of the publication. The Y. W. C. A. intends to make it valuable in its work among the foreign-born of this country, to help the young girls to be of greater value to America through appreciating that their own mothers, from whatever part of the world, have something of richness to contribute to them and through them to this land.

Up in the Bronx fiver, just as it enters the city, stands a statue that would appear to be the guard to the metropolis or something of the sort. It’s a soldier in the uniform of ‘61, leaning on his rifle, and it is standing on a rough granite shaft, hardly thicker than the figure. It took me four days of questioning before I found anyone in this whole New York who could tell me the what and the wherefore of this lone infantryman. It seems that it was sculpted by a man whose father was a private in the Seventh Regiment during the Civil War and who himself was more of a patriot than artist. He presented it to the Regiment, but their art censor “sincerely regretted” etc. And then said the sculptor, “This statue is going to stand, regardless of art and its consors or the whole Seventh regiment.” So out he went to the upper waters of Bronx Park, stuck his granite shaft into the bottom of the river square in the middle of the stream and placed his statue firmly upon it. When you yet over your surprise and wonder at it, there’s something rather impressive gained from its location.

Herman Sternburg, 23 years old, weighs just 96 pounds. But evidently that is not the reason for his having failed to challenge M. Georges Carpentier. He was dragged into the police court the other day by an abused policeman, six feet tall and weighing a fraction over 200 pounds. Herman had attacked him, the policeman said, assaulted him with violence. The officer wanted him locked up, not only as punishment for this misconduct, but to protect himself and society. It was quite apparent that Herman was a dangerous antagonist.

MANY OF LAYITY JOINING ORGANIZATION OF ARMY BRANCH

Society of Quartermaster Officers Has Application From Many Outside the Ranks of the Army.

One of the most remarkable after-war happenings is the way in which commerce and industry throughout the country are back of the Army today in those preparations for possible future conflict always quietly going on. For the past month there has been an unexpected number of requests for admission to the new Society of Quartermaster Officers—a service organization to which lay members are eligible.

During the war some 10,000 corporations and firms measured up to Army specifications as being responsible to undertake any business on which they might bid. Of these 2,500 have received official citation from the War Department commending them for the excellence of their work.

All were invited some time ago by the quartermasters of the Army to join them. They responded in amazing numbers, and the Society of Quartermaster Officers, newest organization of the kind, bids fair to be the largest military association. Today these business men and Army officers, as well as Reservists and National Guardsmen, announce the appointment of committees to celebrate the 146th anniversary of the Quartermaster Corps on June 16, at a series of dinners from Boston to San Francisco, and in our foreign possessions, and to cement their organization.

As Major General H. L. Rogers, the Quartermaster General, said today: “Modern warfare on a large scale cannot be waged without the co-operation of the industry of the country. Indeed, in the words of Thomas A. Edison, ‘Industry joined hands with the armed forces of the nation and together they won the war.’ Therefore, I ask every member in the Quartermaster Corps to assist in all possible ways to promote a spirit of helpful understanding and co-operation between the business and industry of the country and ourselves to the end that in case of war we shall be united.”

COLONY HOUSE BEST MEANS OF HANDLING YOUNG CHICKS.

Results obtained by experienced poultry raisers of Kentucky in handling growing pullets on range show that the colony house which divides the flock into small colonies furnishes the best means of handling the birds. Since its purpose is to provide shelter for the pullets at night and during bad weather in the summer the colony house need not be built as well as the laying house. It should, however, afford protection from rats, weasels, and other small animals as well as from the rain. In addition it should supply plenty of room for the growing birds, have ventilation without drafts, be well-lighted and dry, according to members of the Poultry Department of the College of Agriculture. The house should be built on runners to that it can be easily moved thus making it possible to use different fields for range each year and have a constant supply of green food.

The first essential of the house is that it shall provide plenty of room for the flock. If the house is fitted to capacity at first it will soon become crowded as the pullets grow rapidly. A house ten feet square will be large enough for about 75 birds. At least six inches for each bird should be provided on the perches.

As the pullets will be close together at night an abundance of fresh air should be available. Drafts should be avoided but enough circulation of air allowed to carry off the impurities. Proper ventilation may be secured by opening on the south side of the house which are provided with screens and curtains.

As in any other house there should be plenty of light, an abundance of it on the floor being especially advisable. Sufficient light will be provided if the open front of the house faces to the south. The interior of the house can be made lighter by white-washing. A small amount of carbolic acid or creosol added to the whitewash will be helpful in keeping down lice, mites and diseases. The floor should be covered with a straw litter which should be removed when it becomes old, as dirty litter in the house will breed diseases.

Plans and specifications for colony houses may be obtained by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington.

NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH.

Winchester, Ky.—Four people narrowly escaped death when the automobile in which they were riding went over a 25-foot embankment. Will Kirkpatrick was more seriously hurt than any of the other members of the party, suffering a cut across his forehead and minor injuries. Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Wood and their two-year-old daughter were bruised badly. The fall was broken by shrubbery on the embankment.

MAJOR DENHARDT TO SPEAK AT RUGGLES

Prominent Soldier, Politician and Lodge Man, Will Speak at Old Settlers' Reunion July Fourth.

The Old Settlers Association has word from Major Henry H. Denhardt of Bowling Green, Kentucky, accepting an invitation to address the Old Settlers at Ruggles Campgrounds on the Fourth of July. The association feels that in securing Major Denhardt they have a treat in store for those who attend these annual reunions of exceptional merit. Major Denhardt has been a prominent figure in the political, military, and fraternal life of the state for several years. He has served his country as judge and is a leading legal light of the progressive city of Bowling Green. He is Past Grand Sachem of the Improved Order of Red Men. He has for years been one of the most popular men attending the Great Councils of the order. During the late war he served his country, spending many months in France. He is a most entertaining speaker. Hear him and you will be delighted with the man and be helped by what he says.

With two such speakers as Denhardt and Colvin, and with Fred Bassett to furnish the fun and the Tollesboro band to furnish music, Ruggles Campgrounds offers the one ideal place to spend the Fourth. Make your plans accordingly. Maysville people can spend the day there and the evening at Beechwood, thus enjoying two celebrations.

WOMEN'S WOES

Maysville Women Are Finding Relief At Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Keeping the kidneys well has spared thousands of women much misery. Read of a remedy for kidney ills only that is endorsed by people you know. Mrs. E. L. Cullen, 322 West Second street, Maysville, says: "Three years ago I had an attack of kidney trouble and my back ached continually. I had no ambition to do my housework and everything seemed a drag to me while going about it. I had blinding, dizzy spells and my head ached all the time. My kidneys were not acting regularly and in other ways showed signs of disorder. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I sent to Wood & Son's drug store and got a box. After using them I got over the trouble entirely and have never since been bothered. I willingly recommend this remedy."

Price 60c., at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Cullen had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

GRAIN IN GOOD CONDITION, CROP REPORT SHOWS

Federal and State Crop Report Shows Only Slight Decline in Wheat Forecast During Month.

The Federal and state crop report for Kentucky just issued shows: Kentucky's wheat crop now promises 7,607,000 bushels compared to a prospect May 1, 1921, for 7,851,000 bushels, according to the June crop report issued today by the U. S. Bureau of Crop Estimates in co-operation with State Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna. The condition of the state's wheat crop dropped from 93 per cent. May to 87 on June 1. Last year the condition June 1 was 65 per cent. and the final yield turned out 5,610,000 bushels, while the five-year average, 1915,19, inclusive, was 9,878,000 bushels, which included the increased war acreage.

Oats are doing fairly well in most counties, on a good acreage. The condition is 84 per cent. of normal and the acreage about 345,500, indicating a production of about 7,859,000 bushels compared to 8,225,000 bushels produced last year from 350,000 acres which showed a condition of 90 per cent. on June 1, 1920.

Rye condition is 91 per cent. of normal. With about 38,000 acres in the state to be harvested for grain this indicates a production of about 484,000 bushels compared to 480,000 bushels produced last year.

Barley acreage in Kentucky this year is about ten per cent. more than in 1920, due chiefly to decreased barley tobacco acreage. Most of the barley in Kentucky is grown in the central Blue Grass counties. Condition of barley is 94 per cent. of normal, indicating a production of about 127,000 bushels compared to 112,000 bushels last year.

Farmers in many counties report their meadows are late and very weedy, and much of the young clover was damaged by the late freezes. Condition of clover is 81 per cent., with the acreage about 3 per cent. more than in 1920, due chiefly to decreased tobacco acreage. Alfalfa condition is 86 per cent. The acreage is about four per cent. more than 1920. Pasture in most sections averages fair. Plowing corn planting and tobacco setting still being done.

Apple prospects are very poor in most sections, the average being about 18 per cent. of a crop. Peaches and pears are about 8 per cent. of a crop. Truck crops are growing well now, but melons were severely checked by cold weather late in May. Blackberries promise a good crop in most parts of the state.

LEG BROKEN IN COLLISION.

James Griffin, colored tailor, suffered a broken left ankle and was otherwise bruised Sunday evening at about 6 o'clock when a motorcycle he was driving collided with an automobile driven by Mrs. Frank Maher, of the county. Mrs. Maher was driving west on Second and Griffin was driving east on the same street. When at Sutton street, Mrs. Maher turned South and struck the motorcycle at the intersection of the two streets. Griffin's injuries are quite serious.
